

How to keep your Boy on the Farm

Ever had a horse of Bill Eggleston, of Westmount? Not well?

"I don't like that horse, at all," said the man who had applied to Bill for a quiet kind of family horse for his wife to potter around with. "He seems lame in both legs."

"Well," mused Bill, "there may be a little stiffness in his legs, but he'll get over that. Just look at that horse's ears. Just take a look at 'em! Don't care where you go you'll never see a horse with better ears, and if a horse can't see well it doesn't make any difference about its legs. Perhaps you don't know that horses are liable to many diseases of the ears, and a man who is not an expert in just as likely as not to buy some old nag that can't see his way into a barn. If you get hold of such a horse as that, what infection would there be in knowing that he had good legs? You have to think of all those things when you are buying a horse."

"But this little brayhorse as though he had the brains."

"Suppose he has a touch of the brains? Don't you know that the ideal family horse always has the brains? I know lots and lots of men who would never think of driving horses that didn't have some trouble of the kind. I can quite understand you, son. You take a horse and keep it up the barn day after day, as family horses are always kept, and when you take him out of the barn for a drive the critic feels as any that it's liable to run away and dump your loved one down the nearest ditch."

"But a horse with the brains is a horse that is a little bit more than it suffers the little bit, and has to learn again to be a little bit more to get back his wits. It's pretty by experience and learning to learn. I wouldn't dream of letting my little ride behind a horse that didn't have the brains. I wouldn't let a boy have a horse that he can't control."

"You think the horse is rather an advantage than otherwise?"

"Yes, things! Just think just the beautiful name and tell that horse has. Did you ever see such a name? It doesn't care how good a horse may be in other ways, but if it hasn't got a fine name and isn't in the family you're lost. There's nothing so humiliating for a boy than to drive around in a horse with a tail like an old feather duster and a name that is all straight. No horse in Alberta, had better eyes in a finer name and tail than this one. That's on both."

"Well, his name and tail may be all right, Mr. Eggleston, but how is he in other respects? That front knee looks as if it had been broken at some time or other."

"Now you come to mention it, that is rather a blemish. But look at his head—get on in his head! Did you ever see such a kokon on a horse?"

"The blemish between the eyes shows that he has great intelligence, and the wide nostrils are a sure sign of endurance, and the way he holds his ears is proof that he is sure."

"Chuck! He's just like me, no sir!"

"Yes, that's all right. He takes you for a horse of his. His appetite shows him to be healthy. That more could any man ask? Some horse dealers would work out some bone on that that he's a lamehead here and charge you four or five prices, but you won't get a horse with such a head, such a superb look, more than once in a hundred years. When you go to buy a family horse the first thing necessary is to see that you get one with good eyes, a beautiful nose and tail, and a fine head. The rest doesn't matter much."

"His teeth look as though he was forty years old."

"Not in the least. That's a good sign. In those years of the old world at Westminster you will find, and in those places where it is night and day, his teeth will be fine. Taking two weeks as the actual time when the king will be crowned, the coronation will be given at the beginning of the year in the places mentioned."

Not only in London, or in the British Isles, but in every part of the Empire, will be simultaneously at the exact moment when the crown is placed upon the head of King George in Westminster Abbey, on Thursday, June 22. The shouts of "Long live the King!" as they resound through the streets, will find an echo in the most distant part of the world.

In the great cities of the self-governing dominions at every military station throughout the vast Indian empire, and in small islands in many seas and oceans, the triumphant boom and shout will be heard. Men of all colors and all races will join in an acclamation such as was never given to monarch before. The colonial office has made a request of the war minister, the king will be placed in the king's head, and the information is expected that the time will be within a few minutes of two o'clock when the king will be crowned. The king will be crowned by the colonial office to every part of the empire, so that arrangements for saluting the king can be made well in advance.

In those parts of the empire where it is daytime when it is night abroad at Westminster guns will be fired, and in those places where it is night, rockets and bonfires will be lit off. Taking two weeks as the actual time when the king will be crowned, the coronation will be given at the beginning of the year in the places mentioned.

In A Calgary

The City of Calgary

We do not know of any proposition that gives more opportunity for safe and profitable investment than the subdivision directly adjoining and overlooking the C.P.R. Industrial Division

Springwell Park

Is most advantageously situated, practically forming the east boundary of the C. P. R. Industrial Division, and at present prices does not a 100 per cent. to 200 per cent. profit within 15 months.

A Few Reasons Why

1. The C. P. R. Industrial Division should become the home of new industries, shops, etc.
2. Leading officials of the C. P. R. are behind the company known as the Prairie Gas Company, which has recently taken over the natural gas franchise of the city, and at a cost of approximately $3,000,000 will pump natural gas from a point 100 miles distant. Just stop to consider the magnitude of this project. The revenue derived from gas supplied for domestic purposes will contribute to pay the interest on the money invested for many years to come. The natural inference is that the prime motive for this project is the supply of natural gas for power purposes—to supply shops and industries.
3. Prominent citizens of Calgary, Winnipeg and other cities, including C. P. R. officials, have purchased property in close proximity to the C. P. R. Industrial Division, and today are holding these properties at very high prices.
4. Calgary is the centre of one of the fastest growing markets in the world. The manufacturers are being attracted by unexcelled railroad and shipping facilities, combined with the greatest asset, cheap power, in the form of natural gas.

Not one single member of the party whose cause this paper has been fighting for years volunteered assistance. We had to fight a lone hand, and lost. They feared they would be called on for putting in a good word for a little western rag like The Eye Opener.

Some years later, when a vicious attempt was made to ruin the paper and financially it was in a bad way, the Liberal empire did not see the use of Conservative troops a hand to help in the fight. It was then that the paper fought a lone, bitter battle, winning out in the end. It was then that the paper fought a lone, bitter battle, winning out in the end. The Conservative did not stand by their own people. That has always been their policy of weakness. They often ask the source of Clifford B. H. The answer is that his own people and helped them who helped him.
